

Chris was born on the 28th of April 1986. He is the sixth born in a family of eight. His father died when he was a child and he does not remember when this was. He used to stay with his mother and his siblings.

Due to the difficulties he and his family were facing, he was forced to go on the streets to look for money and food. This, however, proved difficult because street life was not that easy, as older street boys and some police officers would often pounce on him for various reasons. He went on the streets in 1998.

Chris was one of the boys that were rescued from the streets by a non-governmental organisation called Hope for Children Mission in 2000 August and were later transitioned to Lifenet in 2001.

The highest level of education he had reached then was grade three. Nevertheless, when he came to Lifenet, he was taken through the reading and writing skills education program, which ran for a year. This equipped him to be ready for life skills that Lusaka Business and Technical College
