Nicolas wants to be a banker after finishing school. He loves English and Mathematics. He also enjoys playing football and singing people.

His grand father has no money to continue sending his grand child to school. The preceding necessitated Nicholas' stopping of school.

When Lifenet went to Lukata for an assessment, it was apparent that Nicolas needed help. He looked very thin and malnourished and he looked too small for his age.

Lifenet through its endeavour to see economically challenged orphans and vulnerable children grow into responsible citizens anchored in Christian values and civic responsibility, saw the need to adopt Nicolas and take him back to school.

Nicolas has now enrolled in school and will start school in March this year. Conversely, individualized tuitions are been given to him to bridge the learning gap.

Sanguine is his perceived temperament. Adjectives that best describe his temperament tendencies are flexible, warm, friendly, compassionate, neat and generous. Negative tendencies that best describe his temperament are egoistic, insensitive, rude and fearful.
